ASSOCIATE

Amanda Todd is a member of the firm's Litigation section. Her journey to law began with her becoming a real estate broker and practicing real estate for many years, building a successful company and participating in over 1,000 transactions. She then expanded her business across three states as a single mom and garnered national attention for her dedication to success. An insatiable learner, Ms. Todd wanted to broaden the scope of her professional expertise and advocacy, so she decided to become an attorney.

Ms. Todd assists clients in matters through alternative dispute resolutions, such as mediation, arbitration, or litigation when necessary, receiving positive outcomes for her clients. Ms. Todd has been complimented by mediators for her depth of knowledge as it applies to real estate law and the great benefit that is to her clients. She loves to apply her life experience in real estate and business with a practical approach to facing legal issues. She has prepared for and participated in multiple trials in California, as well as other litigation matters in Utah, Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Ms. Todd strives for a collaborative approach, even when litigation is complex and intense. She has successfully represented clients who received legal relief and peaceful resolutions despite difficult situations. Her client care and attention to detail are unmatched. With empathy for her clients, her goal is to obtain a resolution, and she takes seriously her role as a "counselor at law."

Ms. Todd has experience with general litigation, complex litigation, real estate, landlord/tenant disputes, boundary disputes, commercial leasing, purchase and sale transactions, seller non-disclosure disputes, real estate agent breach of fiduciary duty disputes, municipality and personal land rights disputes, land use/restrictive covenants, fraudulent real estate transactions, lis pendens, wrongful liens on real property, and the defense of real estate agents in ethics complaints matters.

Ms. Todd is a mentor to many and a motivational speaker who always looks to add value to any room she is in. In her free time, she competes in Ironman triathlons and enjoys spending time with her husband, kids, and dogs. Ms. Todd is an honest and compassionate person, and a trustworthy and fierce advocate. Her goal is to exceed and expand the expectations of all her clients.
